Health Promotion Through Ayurveda And Yoga

Introduction

Ayurveda and yoga are age old complementary Vedic sciences which have been growing and enriching peoples lives for thousands of years. Generally speaking, Ayurveda deals more with the health of the body, while yoga deals with purifying the mind and consciousness. Both the sciences share a strong philosophical foundation, mutually support and offer many ways to prevent and heal various disorders to cleanse and rejuvenate the body.

Ayurveda involves ways more than just taking herbal remedies. Students will be introduced to methods of diagnosis, including the pulse and condition of various parts of the body, for example: the tongue, nails and hair etc. and techniques for cleaning toxins from different parts of the body. Herbal treatments required to stimulate or suppress specific functions in the body are also taught .

Yoga is one of the most important facets of the Indian culture. with a living tradition of more than five thousand years. Yoga is meant essentially for the spiritual heritage and has grown to be accepted as a science of spiritual development and health. The awareness about yoga practices is increasing amongst people from different walks of life not only for preservation, promotion of health, but also for prevention and management of diseases. In the modern day, the techniques of Yogic Science are extremely useful in the management of stress and stress related disorders and to promote positive health of an individual.

Keeping these immense benefits and scientific wellness benefits in mind, the Indian Red Cross Society has formulated a highly effective course in Ayurveda and Yoga to additionally add to general well being and fitness.

India is a country with more than a billion population with a rich heritage and a bright future. It is constantly marching ahead with new ideas and technologies after its independence from the colonial rule. The lifestyle of people has become more stressful and lifestyle disorders like obesity, sleep disturbances, high blood pressure, psychosomatic diseases, diabetes, and heart diseases are on the rise. India has acquired the designation of Diabetic capital of the world. To combat the lifestyle disorders and diseases, Indian Red Cross Society (IRCS) has taken a lead to design a short-term course through the ancient science of Ayurveda and Yoga for health promotion for the individual and at community level.

About the Organizations

Indian Red Cross Society

Apart from promoting humanitarian principles and values, the Indian Red Cross Society (IRCS) is actively involved in disaster response, relief, disaster preparedness and health care in the community. The IRCS is a national federation of more than 700 branches spread all over the country and is one of the largest National Society in the world. Established in 1920 by an ACT XV of Parliament, the IRCS has wide and varied experience in disaster relief work ranging from 1934 Bihar earthquake to 1999 super cyclone in Orissa , 2001 Gujarat earthquake, and to 2004 Tsunami in Coastal areas in Andhra Pradesh, Tamil Nadu & Kerala and J & K Earthquake in 2005. It has a network of 700 branches having 12 million members and Volunteers available all over the country. The IRCS being a member of the Red Cross movement has close links with the International Federation of Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies (IFRC) and the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC). These are non-political, humanitarian organizations having wide exposure and experience in humanitarian fields. The IRCS has also established good working relationships with National Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies. The IRCS benefits immensely from these organizations technically and financially in times of need and for the purpose of capacity building. In addition IRCS also works with a number of other National Red Cross societies like American, British, Canadian, Spanish, German, Hong Kong and World Health Organization and others.
